EVIDENCE LACKING ASSERTS PROSSER

Attorney for Fourteen Kauai Japanese Accused of Murder, Talks of Case.

According to Attorney M. F. Prosser, who returned yesterday from Kauai, there was no evidence to warrant the indictment of the fourteen Japanese indicted for murder and given their freedom last week by an instructed verdict. Prosser was counsel for the defense.

"When it came to a show down, the prosecution had no evidence against any of the accused," he said. "The court told the county attorney that he would have to make some showing of evidence against each one of them. He had no evidence at all against any single one of them."

Prosser was asked how it was that the grand jury had brought in an indictment against the fourteen if there was no evidence at all. "You can search me," he said. "At least eight of the defendants were not within a mile of the place where the murder occurred, at the time of the row. Four of them were at the manager's house. The officers just made it an open season for Japs, scooped up fourteen of them and tried to put them through, and have kept them in jail five months with no evidence to justify arrests."

MYSTERIOUS FADING AWAY OF YOUNG GIRL

Did the girl who went out to see her "husband" on the Jane L. Stanford as that vessel lay outside the harbor really have a husband on board, or was she taken out and then held there while the barkentine put out to sea and headed to the northwest? That is a question which has been popping up in the minds of a few persons who knew of the occurrence.

It appears that when the Stanford was lying off the harbor last week and waiting for a crew here, the skipper and a young Hawaiian girl went off to the ship in a launch. The captain told the launch man she was on her way to see her husband on board before he sailed to the Coast. The girl is described as being about seventeen years of age.

Once outside and the passengers on board, the launch waited for a time, and then a sailor was sent down from the ship to ashore. The launch brought him in and the vessel sailed away with the girl still on board, as far as anyone on shore knows.

There was no woman signed on, according to Shipping Commissioner Almy, so the girl could not have been a member of the ship's company. It appears now that there will be one more on board when arrival at the Coast is made. Folks are wondering if the girl went of her own accord.

DISTRICT ENGINEER PLANS LONG TRIP

District Engineer William F. Martin of the United States Geographical Survey, will leave on the Wilhelmina Wednesday for a lengthy visit to the mainland. The survey headquarters at Washington has urged Mr. Martin to hurry with the completion of the water paper on Hawaii and the district engineer believes that much of the closing up work connected with this important document can be more readily performed in Washington than here. In the meantime the local force, Messrs. Pierce and Stewart, will rush forward the remaining compilations as fast as they are finished.

Mr. Martin has not had a vacation for several years and he is in hopes that his superiors will let him take it all out together during this trip. With Mrs. Martin, whom he will meet at Los Angeles, he will visit briefly his parents in eastern Texas and then go on to Washington. Before returning he expects to go to Boston and Minneapolis, to which cities his work will take him. He expects to return to Honolulu in June.

NEW YORK TO VOTE.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The presidential primary will be held here tomorrow.

PHILADELPHIA BREAKWATER COMPANY'S QUARRY SECRET IS REVEALED AT LAST

The Philadelphia Breakwater Company, which has the contract for building the superstructure on the Hilo breakwater, will open a quarry on the lowlands adjoining the site picked by Lord-Young company when they started their substructure contract two years ago. Mr. Young was rather surprised when he heard recently that there was good rock close to what he terms his "mush-pile." The Lord-Young quarry was abandoned after a large amount of the stone was rejected by the federal inspectors. The firm is now obtaining material from the Kapoho quarry on the line of the Hilo Railroad Company. When the bids for the building of the superstructure were opened last year there was only a few dollars difference between the bids of the Philadelphia company and the Lord-Young company. The former company guarded the secret of their quarry. Rumor had it that the company intended to quarry rock on Maui and barge it across the channel. It was also stated that the company intended to continue the use of the Kapoho quarry after the Lord-Young company finished its contract this spring. The Philadelphia company's representative here, Mr. Wood, was mum on the question of the quarry site, and other bidders and people interested in the new work were kept in the dark as to where the stone was to come from.

The new site is reported to have exactly the class of stone necessary to carry out the terms of the contract. It is close at hand. The Lord-Young company took the first contract with a view to expanding a large amount for a plant, and making up on the excessive expenditures by securing the second contract of about $400,000. Their bid was close but failed to get the award. The present contract will not yield the Lord-Young company much profit, it any.

The Philadelphia company will ship a large amount of its machinery from the mainland, and will also put some of its best men on the job. The men have been at work on other contracts of the Philadelphia company on the Great Lakes and along the Atlantic.

LOVE FOR HAWAII OVERCOMES ALL ELSE

that I get a square deal in that convention in April.

Not Afraid of a Fight.

"I am not afraid of a fight. Not at all, but as between the fight in the convention and the fight in congress I believe my duty to be in Washington. In the fight I have against the administration of the Territory I will leave that to your judgment and if your judgment is such that you believe I am right, I wish you well."

"Now, gentlemen, I have not very much to say, excepting to appeal to the justice of every citizen here that when I go to Washington to attend to other duties I ask you to study the situation well, and if you think I am right, then I ask you to protect me in the convention."

"It is a peculiar business to me to be in, when my whole political future depends upon the fight I am making against Frear, to have to leave that fight and go to Washington."

A Higher Duty.

"Notwithstanding that fact, if I am defeated in the convention I will know that I have done a higher duty by going to Washington to protect the majority and backbone of this Territory. I have no vote in congress, but I have been there ten years and in that time I have never made a speech on the floor, but everything I have asked for has been given us."

"I have a few friends in the senate. I don't say that I can influence any senators, but I do say this: Show those senators, notwithstanding the fight I am making, that I have in my heart the welfare of the Territory of Hawaii."

"All I ask, gentlemen—I won't argue it—or what the newspapers here have said about me—is to send me as a delegate to Chicago. I am for Taft, and if any of you present are delegates to that convention, I hope you will back me up and elect me as one of those delegates to Chicago."

"Study the conditions of this Territory, in every way possible, and stick to what is right and just and vote, no matter what happens, for equal and just rights for everybody."

Hawaiian Address.

In Hawaiian, the Delegate spoke along similar lines, but injected considerably more of the Kuhl-Frear controversy. He said in part:

"The accusation has been made that when you elected me to congress I would be a detriment to the Hawaiian race. I have been there ten years, but I have shown equal rights to the poor as well as to the rich. These political questions are not child's play. Have you found anything wanting in me? If not, vote for me again. I have never done anything to the detriment of the Hawaiians or any other nationality in this Territory."

"You have heard accusations that the sugar planters paid me. What have I done in congress that shows that I backed up the sugar planters. I am there to do justice to the rich and the poor."

"I have laid charges against the administration of the Territory, and you all have read them. There is the question of the fight between Frear and myself and the sugar tariff fight. I want to ask you what you think. Shall I stay here to fight Frear, or go to Washington? If I go, what will become of this fight between Frear and myself. If you think it is a personal question, leave it alone, but if you think it is for the welfare of the Territory, and you people think it is correct, then back me up. If not, throw me down."

In the Voters' Hands.

"I am going to Washington to protect the main industry of the Territory. While I am away my fight is in your hands. If you people give me fair play on April 15 and you see that I am elected a delegate to Chicago, then well and good. My fate is in your hands and I ask you to back me up."

"Lots of my friends have asked me to stay here. Why should I? My duty is in Washington. If you people place confidence in me then my fight is safely left in your keeping."

"If a vote were to be taken tomorrow by the people of the whole Territory, I would not be afraid, for I know I will be backed by the masses of the people. But this is a primary election of the Republican party. The question is shall be the nominee for President of the United States—Taft, Roosevelt or La Follette? I am for Taft, and therefore, I shall want a Taft delegation to go to Chicago."

"Therefore, I am leaving for Washington to watch for the benefit of this Territory and when I am gone you folks have my election in your hands at the convention."

Not the Truth.

"You have seen all the charges in the Star and Advertiser, but when they are all summed up they do not tell the truth. They say anything they can get up in order to discredit me and my people. When those two newspapers accuse me and you have read their statements I will stand before you knowing that for all the slur they cast upon me that you will give the same amount in votes for my credit."

"Leaving all personalities aside, I ask you to vote for Kuhl."

His Lieutenants.

"I am going to Washington on Wednesday and my fight will be left in the hands of John C. Lane and W. C. Achi, and they will be my lieutenants to carry on my campaign, and they will be assisted by R. W. Breckons, R. W. Shingle and Jack Atkinson. If you people have any personal fights against Lane and Achi throw them aside. Personalities against them are not the main questions today."

Following John C. Lane's introductory speech, W. C. Achi spoke on the sugar tariff, stating that with this question the Democrats are playing politics. The Delegate returned from Washington to fight Frear, but now he wants to return to Washington.

Every Little Helps.

"When he does, what will become of his fight here?" asked the Palama politician. "Will he be defeated?" Achi then spoke of the $20,000,000 more or less that Hawaii would lose if the free sugar measure prevailed. It would block the progress of the islands. By going to Washington, he said, Kuhl would help in the fight to maintain the tariff. Mr. Achi said that the Delegate might not be able to do much when he went back to Washington, but even if he helped to save a little of the tariff, he would accomplish something for the benefit of his people. "The Prince must go back," shouted Achi.

If Kuhl Wins Out?

"J. P. Cooke and young Cooper are today fighting the Prince," continued Achi. "If the Prince wins out in the coming campaign, he will be successful in his charges against the administration."

"The fight for Taft is nothing. Cooke and Cooper started this boom for Taft, but when Kuhl landed here from Washington he said he was for Taft, so what is there to do?"

"The Prince and his followers are for Taft, first, last and all time, and J. P. Cooke has something beyond the mere selection of a delegation pledged to Taft. What is it? There is the Prince and Shingle on one side and they join in a back office conference with Cooper and they say that Kuhl, Shingle and Reardon from Oahu shall go to the Chicago convention and that Rice of Kauai shall be national committeeman. To their proposition the Prince objected. Their thing should not be done in a back office, but should be left to the people to decide."

"Will you people allow such a thing to allow these four men to pick the delegates, the senators, representatives and supervisors? Will you people stand for it?"

When John C. Lane introduced the Delegate he said he was the man whom the papers always refer to as "Kill Kuhl, Kill Kuhl."

MANY ASK FOR PEOPLE'S PRAYERS

"Every age has acknowledged the purity of Christ. John Stewart Mill half a century ago said that Christ would always be the greatest figure of the world and we might quote scores of others. For Christ stands out the peerless, the one of the centuries. The Caesars, the Alexanders and the Napoleons are as nothing in history when we think of Christ. All ages will declare that among the sons of men there is none so illustrious as He. And yet that one is most exalted among His fellows is the most lowly among His fellows."

Greatest Joy.

"This world has never furnished an attraction such as Jesus Christ. We find that in all the world his name is sweeter music than that of any siren or orchestra or choir. The Christian man or woman of today loves the sound of that name more than all else. And the true follower of the Savior finds the greatest joy of this world in knowing and following the Christ—this supreme character of the ages."

"I want to say right here that when I find a man who is a true follower of Jesus Christ, whether he be in the Catholic church, in the Greek church or in any other church, I love that man! I love the man who loves God!"

There are in this time and age many misrepresentations of Christ—I know men and women who are in their own minds really perfect, and I sometimes wonder why the Father in all His wisdom did not take them right out of this sinful world. These people are not representatives of Christ. But when I
